CHANGE OF VENUE
FOR FLANAGAN?His Attorney Will Move for One
in Court Today.

DEKALB JURIES NOT IMPARTIAL

Defense Claims Flanagan Cannot Get a Fair Trial at Decatur.

SENSATION IS TO BE SPRUNG AT TRIAL

If Motion Is Overruled the Defense
Will Claim Flanagan Is Insane
and Was Insane at the Time
the Crime Was Committed.Early this morning Edwin Flanagan will be taken from Fulton jail to Decatur to be arraigned for his second trial. Court will be held at 9 o'clock by Judge Candler.Colonel Glenn, for the defense, will ask for a change of venue for his client, claiming that owing to the hostile feeling that was exhibited at the former trial, the presence of the military, the threats that were made and which have been made during the last few days, and the general discussion that has been going on over the entire county about the case and the prejudice that exists in the public mind, a Dekalb county jury cannot be got to give the prisoner a fair and impartial trial.It is said that prejudice exists in the county against the prisoner. Already the crime has cost the county $2,000 and the present one, owing to the increased number of witnesses, will raise that sum to $5,000. The friends of the family of the Allen are extremely anxious that the trial should be held at Decatur, where the defense is sustained and the case is transferred to another county, it is not of all improbable that venue of a serious nature will arise.Courtroom To Be Open.
Judge Candler will throw the courtroom
open to all who can get in if there are no threats of lynching or disorder of any kind. He has determined that as soon as any rumors are heard of any violence being done to the prisoner the courtroom will be cleared and no one admitted unless he is directly connected with the case.The attorneys on both sides announce that they are ready and it is believed that the trial will proceed without a hitch. Colonel Glenn could not get a leave of absence
from the Fulton county superior court Saturday and it may be that he will want a continuance on this account. However, it is not believed that such an excuse will be allowed the defendant's counsel by Judge Candler. If this is not the making of the issue will be the next step.Colonel Glenn will enter a plea that the prisoner is insane at the present time and should not be tried for murder. This will be his next point, if the motion for a change of venue is overruled.The entire panel of jurors have been summoned, but as the case is a notorious one,
and has attracted much attention, the entire panel will probably have to be gone through with.

Flanagan's Crime.

The crime for which Flanagan must answer is regarded as one of the most heinous and diabolical in the history of Dekalb county. It was committed in the vicinity of Poplar Springs, on the Consolidated street railway line, running between Atlanta and Decatur, at the home of George Allen.In October, 1896, he met little Lella Allen, a child of thirteen years. He at once became attached to her and learning where she lived, went immediately to her father and asked for board at his house.Mr. Allen agreed to board him, as Flanagan represented himself to be a prosperous contractor in the employ of the Standard Oil Company.On the night of December 31, 1896, while the family was at the supper table, Flanagan went to his room, took a drink of whisky, secured his revolver, and went to the dining room. As he entered the door, he began to fire promiscuously at those in the room. At the first fire George Allen shot the floor unconscious, having been struck in the neck. Mrs. Allen was the next victim. She was instantly killed.Miss Ruth Black was struck by a ball and died about a week later. George Allen remained.Flanagan emptied his pistol and remained on the scene. He made no effort to escape.
The neighbors soon arrived, caught him
and, until Sheriff Austin, of DeKalb county, arrived, and he was carried to the Fulton county jail.On February 14, 1897, he was placed on trial in Decatur. His attorneys, Messrs.
Glenn & Brouette, assisted by George C.
Fitzsimmons, entered a plea of insanity
at the time of the trial. This trial continued for six days and the jury brought in a verdict of insanity. A new trial was granted and is now pending.

Here is a case of destitution which invites the attention of the charitable institutions of the city. Mrs. Georgia Moore, a respectable middle-aged woman, who lives on Hubbard street, near the car line crossing, has a large family of children and an invalid husband for support, and the unfortunate are almost in a starving condition. Mrs. Moore has walked the streets day and night for work, but can only make small pitances. She can wash and iron, but she is too old for that. ## Told To Go Back to the Farm.

Les E. Grace, a young white man who claimed to be from the country, in Tallapoosa county, Alabama, was tried Saturday afternoon by Judge Calhoun on the charge of idling and loitering. The young man said he had arrived in town Thursday and was looking for employment, but finding none and having no money to stay, he was on the streets. When asked where he had spent the night, he replied: "I spent it with the night porter. Judge Calhoun told him he could go if he would promise to go back to the farm from which he came. This the boy did and was allowed to go on his way rejoicing."

After His Wife's Clothing.

Joe Wyatt and his wife have not been as happy as they wanted to be for some time, so yesterday the negro couple decided to live apart hereafter. When Joe went to move his clothing he wanted to take part of his wife's also. This she did not like, so they fought over the matter. A case was made against Joe, and Saturday afternoon the recorder fined him $3 and cost.

Napoleon, but Not the Great.

Napoleon Sumners is a young negro boy. This Napoleon does not possess the energy of the great soldier, but on the contrary, is a very lazy fellow. Saturday he was brought before Judge Calhoun on the charge of idling and loitering. Now, Napoleon had almost killed the ancient man had been present. Doubtless it made him turn over in his grave; but it did not trouble the younger man. Sumners was turned free, as the testimony was not very damaging.

The old man claimed that he had spent $20, and at the time the patrolman arrested him was looking for a place to sleep. He asked to be let off, as he wanted to leave town and did not have any money to pay a fine. Judge Calhoun let him go after he had promised to leave the city.

Fresh from the Country.

Alfred Shelf, a young negro man who claims to be from Austell, and who just struck the city Friday, was found sleeping under the doorstep of a residence on Peters street Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. As this was the first time the negro had ever appeared before Judge Calhoun, and as he claimed to be from the country, he was let off with a fine of $1.75.

He Whipped His Wife.

Says Car Crippled Him.

When Reuben Simpson hobbled into court with the assistance of a big stick, Judge Calhoun smiled and said: "Well, Reuben, this drunk nearly finished you up, didn't it?" Reuben, who is a very old negro, said: "No, sir, Judge; it was not a drunk. I just got run over by an electric car last night when I was walking down the street and the gentleman just sent me in because I did not have my stick and couldn't walk well."

As he fined the old man $3 and cost, Judge Calhoun asked him if he had sued the car company yet. The old man laughed and said he was "gwine to enter suit at once." The old man said he had only $2.50, and begged that his fine be "made cheaper," which the judge did, making it $1.75.

Who Lost This Paper?

Quite a curiosity in the shape of an old paper was brought to The Constitution office yesterday. The ancient paper is an old bond executed in London just 120 years ago. The paper is a bond given by Robert Brailford and John Bass to John Hodgson, in the year 1777. The paper is wonderfully well preserved and the writing is as clear as if it had been written in the last few years.

They have just completed the first ward, and will begin on the second ward tomorrow. The assessors will be kept busy during the next several weeks, and the work will be completed by the end of the month. They are making no appreciable changes in the assessments of last year.

Mayor's Return Causes Enlivenment.

Mayor Collier's return to the city has enlivened things about the city hall. During his absence there is a general dullness about the seat of government and few things of interest transpire. He has been very busy catching up with the affairs of his office and receiving the many visitors who called to welcome him back to town.

Mr. Al Greene in Atlanta.

City Clerk W. D. Green is entertaining his brother, Mr. Al. Green, formerly an assessor, but now a traveling man, who is visiting his old home for a few days. ## It Was Not Mr. Dodd's Beer.

In Saturday's Constitution it was stated that burglars had broken into the residence of Mr. G. T. Dodd and a half case of beer had been taken. The statement was an error of the types. As every one knows, Mr. Dodd is a pronounced prohibitionist and he would not touch beer. The error was made by the printer. The name of Mr. Z. T. Dobbs, and it was on account of the similarity of names that the error occurred.

That committee has been authorized to negotiate with the railroad on the subject, and the officials will be asked to attend a meeting to talk over the scheme. Mr. Camp thinks something will be done in this matter before the end of this year, and he will urge the railroad officials to start the work of building a viaduct at about the same time the city is about to extend Alabama by a grade crossing. The bridge committee consists of Mr. Camp, Alderman Woodward and Mr. Stuckey, councilman from the fifth ward. All of whom are anxious for a settlement of the question.

Mayor Collier has announced that the case will be appealed, and he expects to win at the next hearing. He believes the district court sitting at Asheville, and the appeal papers will be presented within the next few weeks.

CANDLER ORDERS COOPER TO JAIL

Sheriff Nelms Was Notified Saturday of Court's Decision.

ARREST HAS NOT BEEN MADE

Judge Candler Says He Does Not Know Why Delay Was Caused.

WILL INVESTIGATE THE MATTER TODAY

The Sentence Is That Cooper Pay a Fine of $500 and Remain in Jail Three Months—His Attorneys Will Plead for Clemency.

The sentence of the criminal superior court in the case of the state against John Tyler Cooper, ex-clerk of the board of county commissioners has been ordered to be executed.

The remittitur of the supreme court was filed in the clerk's office last Friday morning, making the judgment of that court the judgment of the lower court. Saturday morning Judge Candler signed the formal orders in the case and he notified Sheriff Nelms of the decision of the supreme court and instructed him to see that the original sentence was executed in the case and that the fine of $500 be collected and that Cooper be placed in jail where he is to serve out the three months' sentence of the court.

Cooper was not arrested yesterday nor Sunday and last night the sentence had not been executed as per the order of Judge Candler, which was issued Saturday morning. Sheriff Nelms stated Saturday morning that he had received the order from the judge and would arrest Cooper and place him in jail as soon as he could be found. Cooper was on the streets during the day and he called on several prominent gentlemen in the afternoon.

Judge Candler was asked last night when the sentence would be executed in the case. He stated that the order took effect at once and he supposed the arrest had been made as ordered.

"I am very much surprised," said Judge Candler last night, "that the order of the court has not been executed. I sent the sheriff the order Saturday morning. The order was effective as soon as it reached the sheriff, and I thought of course, the order would be carried out and executed, as the law requires."

"As soon as I was informed and notified of the decision of the supreme court, affirming the sentence of the superior court, I signed up the necessary orders and sent the order of notification to Sheriff Nelms. I do not know why the order was not obeyed."

It has been announced that the attorneys of Cooper, Messrs. J. T. Glenn and B. N. Hill, would make an effort to secure executive clemency for their client. A lengthy petition has been circulated which will be presented to the governor, it is said. Governor Anderson is not in the city and has been absent several days on account of illness.

Judge Candler will doubtless investigate the reason why the order has not been executed and there may be some new developments in the case today.

BLIND TIGERS ARE LASSED

City Detectives Arrest Proprietors of Sunday Liquor Shops.

SECRET SERVICE MEN BOUGHT

Then They Inform the Detectives Who Make Arrests—Fort Street and Courtland Avenue Tigers.

Several large tigers, blind in both optics, were found strutting about the street yesterday by Detectives J. B. Harris, Wootton and Walton and Patrolmen Jones, Belcher and Doyle.

The first one was the pet of Amanda McLaughlin, a negro woman, who has been training the tiger ever since its eyes were put out. Her headquarters and training grounds were on Fort street. The detectives say she has been holding forth on this street for some time, but they had never been able to get any positive evidence until yesterday. A man in their employ was sent to the place for whisky yesterday and got it.

Another one of these strange animals that are to be found in every city was caught out on Auburn avenue, the lower end of which has been noted for its propensity for corn since its name was changed from Wheat. This tiger was one on public exhibition under the management of Z. T. Atwater, colored. The receipts of this show were added to one too many when the spotter of the detectives went there.

The other blind animals were under the protection of two negro women, Lula Brown and Alice Butler. Both were run separately on Courtland street and were doing a good business when caught by the detectives, who are at this time working very hard to add to their menagerie, which is not quite as large as they want it to be. They open the season with a special free matinee in Judge Andy's courtroom this afternoon.

LAWSHIE IS WANTED BY POLICE

Fulton Auction and Commission Company Accuses Its Employee.

CASH MISSING FROM THE SAFE

Paul Lawshe Is Charged with Stealing It and He Is Now Badly Wanted by the Firm.

The police authorities have been asked to arrest Paul Lawshe on the charge of larceny. The order was read to all of the watches yesterday, and if the young man is in the city it is probable that he will be apprehended before many hours. The charge against Lawshe was booked by the Fulton Auction and Commission Company, for which Lawshe worked until within the last few days.

He was given full sway in the commission house and had charge of the cash. He has always been very strict in keeping both the books and the cash, and no discrepancy was discovered until suspicion was excited by the disappearance of the young man.

The matter was then looked into, and it is now claimed that between $50 and $65 is missing from the safe, in which the cash was kept. The order was then put on the station house report and the watches were asked to arrest the young man.

Lawshe is the son of Mr. Peter P. Lawshe and lives with his father at 52 Parlane street. Mr. P. P. Lawshe is in the insurance business and is well known and very popular in the city. He is one of the old residents, having come here when the city was still in its infancy.

The Fulton Auction and Commission Company has just been recently organized. It is located at 15 Marietta street, where all sorts of articles from watches to hair pins are auctioned off to the highest bidder.

No warrant has as yet been sworn out for the young man, but those in charge of the commission company announce that they will prosecute him to the fullest extent of the law, under the will of his grandfather, says he is going to prosecute his claim at once. Molenaar claims that his grandfather, who he says was David Molenaar, and who owned a large estate where Harlem now lies, willed the property to his father and brothers and sisters, and after them, to their heirs, entailing his estate, but that his father sold the property to the Harlem Canal company, and it was by them sold to various rich people of the city, who are now living on the estate. The property, a large portion of it being valuable for business.

Molenaar says that he has succeeded in getting the title to the property, and he has secured a number of gentlemen, who will put up money to fight the matter through the courts, the claim being regarded by a number of lawyers as a good one, if it is as Molenaar represents it.

HE WILL FIGHT FOR BIG ESTATE.

Chattanooga Man Claims a Title to New York Property.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 25.—(Special)—M. M. Molenaar, architect and contractor, who has just completed a long and arduous journey to New York City, and who claims to be the Martin Molenaar who created a furor in New York City eight or ten years ago by claiming property in several of the city's streets, is now in the city, endeavoring to establish his claim. He is being aided by a number of lawyers, and it is probable that he will be behind the bars before many hours.

Molenaar says that he has succeeded in getting the title to the property, and he has secured a number of gentlemen, who will put up money to fight the matter through the courts, the claim being regarded by a number of lawyers as a good one, if it is as Molenaar represents it.

Most of the travelers left for their homes, while others have gone to the seaside and mountain resorts. Speaker Reed is still here, but expects to leave during the early part of the week. Chairman Dingley started for Maine today.

The president and those of his cabinet who intend to leave Washington for a vacation will do so in the next few days, so that the end of the session is being marked by a number of departures, and it is well felt that the session has ended a warm welcome among the lobbyists.

JERKED FROM THE LAWS OF DEATH

Hoskins, Street Preacher, Makes Two Attempts at Suicide.

LEAPED IN FRONT OF TWO CARS

Motormen Save Him From Mutilation by the Grinding Car Wheels.

SAID HE WANTED TO END HIS MISERY

Cursed the Motormen for Rescuing Him from a Sudden Death. Would-Be Suicide Arrested Held for Being Drunk on the Streets.

W. W. Hoskins, the street preacher, who was fined in the police court for exhorting his creed on the streets, tried to take his own life twice Saturday night by jumping in front of moving cars of the Consolidated, and on both occasions was only saved by the quick action of the motormen.

After he had made the second attempt, Hoskins was arrested and locked up in the police barracks, but he protested vigorously against this action, and said that he had started out with the intention of committing suicide, and thought he should be allowed to do so.

His protest was disregarded, however, and he has since been confined in a cell, and will appear this morning before the recorder to answer to the charge of being drunk on the streets. When seen yesterday, Hoskins said that he remembered having made two attempts on his life, but said that he was drunk, and would not again try, "unless," he added, "I get drunk again," which makes it extremely probable that Hoskins will try to commit suicide as soon as he is liberated.

It was about 9 o'clock that Hoskins put in his appearance on Marietta street, near the corner of Broad street, where the cars of the Consolidated are constantly passing. He had evidently been drinking, and he reeled about the sidewalk, but he was not disorderly, and little attention was paid to him.

He walked out in the middle of the street just as a going home. A car was passing along the street at the time, and Hoskins suddenly made a dash for it and threw himself on the track in front of the car. The car was traveling at a good speed at the time, and had it not been for the vigilance of the motorman, Campbell, the man would have been instantly killed.

He was seen to fall across the track, however, and the motorman applied the brakes. He acted just in time, the car being stopped within a few inches of the man's body. The motorman jumped from his car and ran to the man, but Hoskins was motionless. It was thought at first that some portion of the car had struck him, and he had been killed. The motorman, however, was not so sure, and he called to the driver to stop the car. The driver stopped, and the motorman ran to the man, but Hoskins was motionless. It was thought at first that some portion of the car had struck him, and he had been killed. The motorman, however, was not so sure, and he called to the driver to stop the car. The driver stopped, and the motorman ran to the man, but Hoskins was motionless.

Hoskins was dragged from under the car and asked why he tried to take his own life. He said he was drunk, but he said that he would say but little more. He said that he would go straight home if nothing was said about the matter. Under this promise the man was liberated, and the motorman, and he was again taken to the police barracks, where he was held for the purpose of going to his home.

He Makes a Second Attempt.

Instead of doing so, however, he returned to the scene of his first attempt, and tried to kill himself again. Luck was against him again, he being rescued this time also. The second attempt was precisely like the first, only it had a different ending, in that Hoskins was turned over to a policeman and locked up. Hoskins, when he threw himself in front of a car the second time, was evidently as determined as when he made the first attempt, but seemed to have imbibed a little more.

This time he was staggering when he reached the track, and the motorman was on the lookout for him. It was somewhat of a surprise for the motorman, however, when he saw the man throw himself directly on the track, and lie with his head in front of the wheel. The car was quickly stopped, and the motorman was dragged from under the car. This time he was talkative, and began to curse the man who had saved his life.

He said that he had had a bad life, and those who had seen the first attempt, came up and explained the matter to the motorman, and he thought it best to call a policeman. Now the man was again taken to the police barracks, where he was held for the purpose of going to his home.

Said It Was a Dream Yesterday.

Hoskins had sobbed up yesterday morning, and said that he remembered the occurrence as if it were a dream. He assured the officers that he would not try to commit suicide again, but they thought it best to hold him. Hoskins is a strange character. He was once a leading spirit in church circles of this city, and was for a long time a member of the First Christian church. Later he turned completely away from the Christian religion and began to support the doctrine of infidelity. He was arrested and fined for preaching that creed on the streets. He is a victim to whisky, and is well known to the police authorities.

WASHINGTON STREET DIVIDED

Paving Question Has Caused Some Bitterness Among Neighbors.

CASE TO BE DECIDED AUGUST 2D

The Advocates of Wood Block Paving Will Fight the Effort To Defeat Ordinance Recently Adopted.

The citizens of Washington street who are opposing the paving of that street with the Williams wood-block paving are very anxious for the hearing of the injunction against the city, to be held and decided by the court. They are making active preparations to fight the ordinance recently adopted by the city council authorizing the paving with wood blocks, and the case will establish a precedent of the greatest importance to the city.

The citizens who desire the street paved with the blocks are equally interested in the outcome of the case, and they are preparing to answer the charge of the opponents, that the blocks are undesirable as jarring material. They want a new pavement, and the action of certain citizens in applying for the injunction is an indication in defiance of the wishes of the many people of the street, has caused a division of feeling among the citizens, and all is not harmony among them.

The case will be the first of the kind ever decided in Atlanta, and it will not only fix a precedent as to paving the streets with wood blocks, but it will settle the question of the right of the city to pave a street on which a pavement already exists. It is claimed that the present pavement is serviceable, and is not worn out, as claimed by the city. The opposing forces assert that the paving can be repaired, and that the city has no legal right to force the property owners to pay for another paving.

The injunction and restraining order was granted by Judge Gohar, of the Blue Ridge circuit, last week, and he fixed August 2d as the day for the hearing before Judge Candler in Atlanta. Judge Anderson, city attorney, and Assistant City Attorney Judge Pendleton, are preparing the city's side of the case, and they will attempt to show that the paving ordinance is legal, and that the street is in need of a new pavement. Several fine points of law are in issue in the case, and a decision is anxiously awaited by both sides.

Spappington, the members of the committee, have been active in the movement to improve Whitehall, and they have given up their usual business in order to be free to work for the betterment of Whitehall. They are receiving encouragement from every source, and they confidently expect the plan under trouble will be carried out without trouble.

At the Seashore.

Woman and Society

Of Interest To Women.

A number of scholarships have recently been given to the School of Industrial Art and Technical Design for Women on West Third street, New York. The school has been given by wealthy and philanthropic women wishing to encourage those young women with artistic and industrial inclinations who have not means to pay their tuition in the school of design. An examination is required of all applicants for the scholarships, and references and testimonials are required. The school has been the greatest success in their profession.

The educational record given of Miss Annie Crosby Emery, recently made dean of women at the University of Wisconsin, is one unusual for even the most advanced woman. Besides her duties as dean, she will act as assistant professor of classical philosophy. In a brief history of her a northern college in 1888 and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in 1892. She also won the European fellowship that year. She continued work in Latin and Greek at Bryn Mawr in 1893, having specialized in these subjects as an undergraduate. After this she went abroad and attended the University of Leipzig and heard lectures on Latin, Greek and Sanskrit by Professors Brugmann, Rugeck, Gardhausen, Artzt, Lipsius, and Windisch. She returned her studies at Bryn Mawr during the latter half of the 1894-95 term, and in the following term she continued graduate work in the classical departments of Bryn Mawr, taking the degree of Ph.D. in 1896. Her thesis, entitled "The Historical Present in Early Latin," has since been highly commended.

In connection with the selection of Miss Emery it is interesting to note that another woman has been selected to a place on the faculty of Cornell college. Miss Louise Sheffield Brownell will begin her duties as warden of Sage college and lecture on English literature next fall.

Among the bright young Georgia women who may now be classed among the foremost women educators of the south is Miss Agnes Virginia Howell of Dalton, Ga. She at present occupies the chair of English literature and rhetoric in the State Normal college of Louisiana, and is a woman of unusual intellect and culture.

She has had the advantage of education that combined with her bright mind and assiduous pursuit of her studies, make her the typical up-to-date woman, thoroughly abreast with the best element of the times. She is a woman of partial to the lecture method of study and has attended the course of normal lectures annually at the Chicago university.

She will attend the university during the summer term and besides the literary lectures, will attend those on sociology.

The very high stand taken by the women students of the University of Mississippi, where co-education has been adopted, has been made a matter of great educational interest. A member of the faculty of the university recently visiting Atlanta, told many interesting incidents pertaining to it. In the graduating class of that institution this year, two women shared the honors of the class, a third stood next and the man who stood highest ranked fourth on the average roll.

The women of Louisiana, like those of Georgia, are clamoring for co-education, and are rather encouraged by what seems to be Governor Taylor's favor of the movement.

In Jamestown, Kas., the mayor of the city and several members of the city council hold complete sway as municipal government. In two interviews recently published as to the success of local government under women, there were two opinions expressed. The one came as one voice from the men that it was not a success, and that crime had been greater since the change, while the women brought forth testimony to prove the direct contrary.

In Kentucky women are being given an opportunity to prove what their capacity may be as public school superintendents. Twelve have already been appointed and as many more are clamoring for the office.

that time what the business of the other

But in the course of the conversation the stranger remarked that when he got in position to invest on his own account he intended to go south to make his bet.

Mr. Hanger asked him where he intended to go, and the stranger replied that he would locate somewhere on the Appalachian range, remarking that there was more gold in the Carolinas, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama than in all British Columbia.

"That was the first intimation I ever had that there was any gold in Georgia," said Mr. Hanger. "Our fellow-traveler turned out to be an expert for the Anaconda mine people. The Anaconda is one of the greatest mines in the world. It employs a number of experts who investigate for the syndicate and report. If the reports are favorable, the company probably buys."

Two years passed and Mr. Hanger heard something more about the Georgia gold field from Colonel Duncan, and he has been ever a part of the field and is favorably impressed with what he saw.

Colonel Duncan says that there is more gold in Georgia than in Alaska. He says that there is some rich gold mines up there no doubt, but it is worth a man's life to go up there.

"Many a good man will lose his life in trying to get a fortune in that terrible country," he remarked. "The winters there are colder than our people can imagine. Work can be carried on for only three months in the year, and if you do not get out at the end of that time you have to stay up there nine months more, doing nothing. It takes the price of a Georgia mine to get up there, and then you have to live. Gold does not grow anywhere on trees. There was a myth once that it grew on the backs of Colchian sheep, but the breed is entirely extinct now. The nearest duplication to it of which I ever heard was up in north Georgia, where the farmers are said to have washed gold out of their wool, but the sheep got so that grating over the gold-ribbed mountains."

Speaking of his experiences in Jamaica, Mr. Tate said that the native negroes make fine laborers, but at first they would not push a wheelbarrow. Instead of doing that, they would fill the barrow with dirt and then pick up the wheelbarrow, put it on their heads and carry it off to dump it. They were accustomed to carrying everything on their heads. They loaded and unloaded ships in that way. In physical strength they filled baskets with coal and then lifted the baskets on their heads and marched off. The natives are well educated as a mass. Education is the rule. They are peaceable and work faithfully. There are thousands of coolies from India there, but they are employed on plantations.

They are too lazy in physical strength such hard work as is required on railroad construction.

Mr. George T. Gostichins, of Rome, was at the Kimball.

Messrs. S. B. Adams and T. M. Cunningham, of Savannah, were at the Aragon yesterday.

Among the Aragon's arrivals were W. S. Purcell, of Philadelphia, and C. P. Burr, of Ohio.

Among those at the Kimball were William J. Darg, of New York; M. C. Brown, E. E. Dixon, Gainesville, Ga., and L. D. Steinback, of Henderson.

F. E. Strong, of New Orleans, who is returning from a trip to Europe, through a part of which he traveled for the city of Chicago. This was a part of the rock work on the canal which the city is building.

The purpose of the canal is to carry the city's sewage to the Illinois river so that it may be carried into the Mississippi river. Chicago has a canal for the city of Michigan. Storms carry this out into the lake, and sometimes it gets into the mains at the cribs out in the lake and contaminates the water.

The city's sewerage system is to prevent this that the city undertook the gigantic work of constructing a canal from the city to the Illinois river. The canal cost the city $25,000,000, and to change the sewerage system of the city will cost $3,000,000 more. When the work was begun it was estimated that $25,000,000 would cover the whole work, but that figure was too small.

Mason, Hoge & Co. had the contract for six miles of the rock work. That is the company cut the canal through six miles of solid rock. Mr. Hanger states that a lake had to be drained off part of the canal's course. That the work was done by the whole work, but that figure was too small.

ADAIR AND BROWN OFF TO THE EAST

Building Committee Left Last Night on

Tour of Inspection.

WILL BE GONE TWO WEEKS

Purpose of the Trip Is To Inspect

Model Courthouses.

ARCHITECTS GO WITH THE COMMISSIONERS

When the Party Returns Work on the Plans Will Be Begun at Once.

The building committee of the board of county commissioners is off to the principal cities of the north and east on the tour of inspection of county courthouses.

Chairman Forrest Adair and Commissioner Walter P. Brown, accompanied by the architects who are to design the new building for Fulton county, left last night for Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, New Haven, Boston and other cities in which are located model county buildings.

The trip will be an extended one, and the commissioners and architects will make the best of the trip. All cities in the east and north in which are located commodious and substantial buildings will be visited and ideas and suggestions will be gleaned from each building. The architects will note the arrangement of the structures and will take notes.

"The new courthouse for Fulton county will be the result of the trip. One of the most elegant courthouses in the country," said Chairman Adair Saturday afternoon. "The trip will be purely business, and all parties will be at work examining the buildings and taking ideas from what we see. We shall visit the principal cities and will inspect the largest and best buildings that are to be found."

FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETS THIS WEEK

Resolution To Pay Officer Albert's
Salary to His Widow Will Be Considered.

When the finance committee of the general council meets this week it will have before it several matters of importance to be considered and reported upon at the next meeting of the council. The committee has been asked to make several appropriations and the session will be an interesting one.

At the last meeting a communication was submitted from the president of the park commission, asking the council to set aside $10,000 to be used in repairing and improving the several attractions at Grant park known as the Grass collection. Mr.
Gress has agreed to donate his property to the city on certain conditions, one of which is that the cyclorama building be repaired
and kept in order and other things done by
the city.

Shall Albert's Salary Be Paid?

Another matter to come before the finance committee is the resolution introduced at the last meeting of council authorizing the board of police commissioners to pay to the widow of Patrolman Albert, who was killed two weeks ago by a burglar, his salary
for the remainder of his term of office.

March, 1896. Judge R. T. Dorsey offered the resolution and he will ask the finance committee to report favorably on the proposition.

The police commissioners are in sympathy with the resolution and they desire to see it passed by council. They argue that the officer was killed in the performance of his duty and that he was a good, faithful servant of the city, and that it is only fair to the family of the deceased to make the favorable consideration of the people.

It is said his family was left without proper means and that the payment of the officer's salary for the term stated will be an act of justice and benevolence on the part of
the city.

Hope for Lumpkin's Plan Yet.

Although the aldermanic board at its meeting last Thursday turned down a resolution offered by Councilman Lumpkin looking to the employment of ten extra police men during the remainder of this year, there is still some hope that such a step will be authorized by council.

Mr. E. C. Peters, chairman of the finance committee, thinks the police force unable to cope with the many burglars operating in the city, and he wants the force increased if possible. He says there is a general demand that the force be enlarged
and that if it is possible for the council to make an additional appropriation it will be done.

More Cops in October, Perhaps.

Mr. Peters hopes the city's finances will be in such condition this fall as to enable the finance committee to set aside an extra appropriation for the police department.
If the revenues come up to expectation
it is likely that an appropriation will be made in the regular October apportionment check. There is no hope for an earlier appropriation, but the finance committee may be able to find money to set aside for the employment of ten or more extra men after October 1st.

The finance committee will soon begin to calculate on the revenue and expenditures
of the remainder of the year, and the committee will figure on the appropriation to be made to the several departments.

Beecham's Pills for stomach and liver

TO ERECT TEMPORARY CHAPEL.

Catholics Will Commence Work on a Temporary House of Worship.

The Catholics will commence this week
the erection of a temporary chapel on the lot where the new church will be erected. They will use these quarters until the new edifice has been completed.

The canvassers are still at work raising funds for their new church, and they are meeting with great success. Catholics and non-Catholics are contributing, and the building will probably be one of the handsomest in the city. The church will be erected on the old Hill lot.

MUST KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

Judge Calhoun Decides That the Law Requires Persons To Turn to Right.

Saturday morning the patrolmen were given special orders to arrest every person that failed to keep on the right-hand side of the road, whether they were traveling on wheels or in conveyances. Nine cases were made by the officers for violating this ordinance. Saturday afternoon when they were being tried, Judge Calhoun decided that the term, "Keep to the right,"
did not mean that the traveler should be on the right-hand side of the street, but rather that when passing any one, a person must always turn to the right. With this construction before them the patrolmen
on the evening watch were instructed to see that the ordinance is strictly enforced.

WHEN DEATH CAME
SHE SWEETLY SMILED

Little Lillian Woodside Met Death
Without a Fear.

SHE DISPOSED OF HER TOYS

Called in Her Playmates and Talked Pleasantly with Them.

DID NOT FORGET HER OLD NURSE

Patient Little Sufferer Smiled Sweetly Into the Anxious Faces and Then Fell Asleep.

When the physicians told little Lillian Woodside, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woodside, last Wednesday morning that she could not live
twenty-four hours, the little patient smiled into the anxious faces of her parents and playmates.

Through many weary days and anxious nights she had tossed upon her bed of pain. Her fever had been raging, and the little mind had wandered in the delirium that followed the fever's touch, but when the end was near and the life was growing dim, Lillian became strengthened and talked of death to those who held her hands and bathed her burning brow.

"I guess it's all right," said the patient little sufferer. "If I must die, I want to tell papa and mamma and brother and sister goodby, and I want to tell them what to do with my dolls and toys."

Thursday morning the chill of death came to Lillian. She called for her friends to assemble about her bedside. She talked about her illness and how she appreciated the little deeds of kindness and thoughtfulness. She bade farewell with a smile, and the childish face, wreathed with agony, was a picture of happy resignation and content.

Calling to her side her little brother,
Lillian gave to him her Stetson pony
and the jewelry she had saved from her little bank. She owned a small knife,
which she gave him, and other childish
toys were placed in his possession.

"I want you to have my bicycle," said
she to her mother.

Little Kate Patterson was given Lillian's clothes. Several weeks ago Lillian had been given a birthday party, and a beautiful dress had been arranged for her to wear on the occasion, and the finery and lace had pleased the childish fancy. This little dress, at the suggestion of the owner, became Kate's.

Calmly the little girl made the arrangements for her funeral. She talked about the hymns she desired to be sung, and she asked that her uncles and one cousin
acted as pallbearers, and her playmates
were present.

Thousands write that they have been given health and strength by Wood's Salsaparilla. It is the great blood purifier, consequently it is the true nerve tonic. It gives renewed vigor.
